DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election of claims 1-4 in Paper No. 5 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 3, and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jain et al. (US 6,180,533 B1; hereinafter "Jain").

In a method for etching a trench in a silicon substrate, Jain uses a dry etching apparatus having a dual power source capable of independently controlling source power for generating a plasma in a chamber and bias power for drawing ions from the plasma into an object to be etched in the chamber. A substrate having a member containing at least silicon exposed is placed in the chamber. A process gas containing at least oxygen is introduced into the chamber in which the substrate has been placed. The bias power is initiated. The etching with respect to the member is performed by generating a plasma of the process gas with application of the source power and drawing ions from the plasma into the member with application of the bias power (col. 7, lines 8-12, 45-50; col. 19 and Table eight). Jain shows that the method provide excellent critical dimension control and good quality without addressing any surface oxidization problem, therefore, it appears that the problem of oxidization proceeding at a surface of the member does not take place when the process is carried out with the application of the bias power. As to dependent claim 3, because Jain discloses that the source power and bias power are separately controlled in the process, therefore, the source power and bias power are operated and adjusted separately. Hence, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art that an effective value of the source power reaches a predetermined value after an effective value of the bias power reaches another value. As to dependent claim 4, Jain teaches the silicon substrate (col. 7, lines 8-10).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim 2 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The references of record do not teach or suggest a method of etching a substrate having a member containing exposed silicon using a plasma of the process gas containing at least oxygen, wherein the application of the bias power is initiated before the application of the source power is initiated.
